Texas holdem poker free games have advantages and disadvantages. The major advantage is that one loses nothing if they play free games and the disadvantage is that one might take a long time to improve in Texas holdem poker free games.

Advantages of Texas holdem poker free games:- There is no need to invest any money in these games. Even if one loses, they are not going to face money loss related pain. They get promotional codes to enroll in money games and they get discounts to join as members. They can log off when they like and there is not going to be any pressure to hang on to play because money is not invested. Disadvantages of Texas holdem poker free games:- They never invest money, they do not have any solid reason to play well and they never improve. Since, there is not going to be any loss, people are not going to learn. The opponents in these kinds of tables are normally fishes and beginners and the skilled system exposure is very less. They really never have a true picture of whether they have improved or not. Playing free Texas holdem poker free games is one way to practice the game like in a real time cash poker room. Once, they get a feel of the software and the terms and rules of the games they will have to have their feet wet in the money games. Some Texas holdem poker free game software is designed in a way to deal only good hands in a way that the players keep winning. These are a kind of marketing methods to encourage people to enroll in memberships. So, real money games are those that can give an accurate projection of the playing capability of a particular player. Texas holdem poker free games are just meant to give an ice-breaking experience to a player and they cannot really hold any true benefit apart from giving a basic feel of the game. Though it is true that many players have improved from Texas holdem poker free games, such could be accomplished only when the opponents are serious players that play the free game like they are playing a money game. However, the real passion of the player towards the game and the kind of passion that they have towards improving counts a lot towards the end result.
